Summer Session 2014

Death and Dying HDEV 300I Cape Town & Johannesburg

GE capstone credit (3 units)
(Open to all majors, alumni, & members of the community)

This 3-week course will compare the death, dying and bereavement experiences of various cultural groups within South Africa to those in the United States.

Students will
• work in township projects with orphaned and vulnerable children,
• hear lectures from hospice and other community workers, and
• take fieldtrips to sites that provide a context for death and dying in South Africa (including: Robben Island, District 6, The Apartheid Museum and Constitution Hill). At the end of the course, a safari in Kruger Park will provide time for reflection on class experiences.

The 2014 course will be very similar to the 2013 summer class, but with an additional day of fieldwork in a rural school. A website about the 2012 class describes activities, presents excerpts from student journals and has pictures from the trip. The URL for that website is: http://csulbsouthafrica.wordpress.com/
